LONG BIO

Marie W. Watts is a former employment discrimination investigator and human resource consultant with over twenty-five years of experience. She has trained thousands of employees to recognize one's own biases and prejudices and avoid discriminating against others in the workplace, and she has coauthored a textbook about it: Human Relations, 4th ed. Additionally, her work has been published in the Texas Bar Journal and the Houston Business Journal, as well as featured on Issues Today, syndicated to 119 radio stations, NBC San Antonio, Texas, and TAMU-TV in College Station, Texas.

In pursuit of justice in the workplace, Marie been from jails to corporate boardrooms seeing the good, the bad, and the ugly of humans at work. She now brings her experiences to life in her works of fiction.

She and her husband live on a ranch in central Texas. In her spare time, she supports a historic house and hangs out with her grandsons.

POSSIBLE INTERVIEW QUESTIONS

I'm a flexible person and good at thinking on my feet! I gained this from training thousands of individuals on diversity and the equal employment opportunity law and taking questions from the audience. You can ask me any questions you want, but here are a few questions you could ask:

1. Does everyone have biases and prejudices?
2. What should I do to do to control my biases and prejudices?
3. What should I do if someone accuses me of being prejudiced?
4. What should I do if someone says something I feel is prejudiced?
5. What should I do if I feel discriminated against at work?
6. Why is a diverse work force important?
7. Minorities can't be biased, can they?
8. What role does power play in discrimination?
9. How does empathy play a part in understanding those different from me?
10. What is stereotyping?
11. What is the writing life like?
